Top 10 Tripods of 2013:

<http://www.photographytalk.com/photography-articles/3753-top-10-tripods-of-2013>

So far, I've put together a list of the ten best cameras of this year.

Now it's time to focus on what we use for long exposures and optimal stabilization: tripods. I consider the tripod to be a must-have in the any photographer's kit, regardless of what genre he works in. You never know when you might need it and it's best to have one lying around than to be missing one. Other than the classical uses, one of the coolest things about using a tripod is that it slows you down and gets you thinking a little bit more about the picture you are about to take. For that, and many other reasons, I strongly recommend a tripod from the list below. Here are our top ten picks for tripods to use in 2013.

1. Sirui N-2204X

Our number one tripod choice has to be the N-2204X. It has a maximum load capacity of 33lbs while weighing no more than 2.9lbs. The folded height of it is 18.4" and it also has a removable leg for a monopod. The maximum height, with the column extended is 65 inches and the minimum height is 6.8 inches. The material is carbon fiber 8x and the legs are divided into 4 sections. The N series has made a name for itself throughout the years by offering innovative, top quality features and design. The N-2204X is no exception and therefore it makes number one on our list of tripods to use in 2013.

4. Sirui T-025X

It comes with a C-10X ball head and it is made of high quality carbon fiber. It features a mechanism that automatically locks the legs in 3 different angles. It can be used to shoot as low as 4.3 inches and the legs fold up to 180 degrees. It is one of the best examples of getting more than what you pay for.
